

Opinion Poll Report April 2025

Methodology and Weighting

- RED C interviewed a random sample of 1,055 adults aged 18+ online between 17th to 23rd April 2025
- An online approach was used, among our bespoke online panel RED C Live.
- Interviews are conducted across the country and the results weighted to the profile of all adults.
- Panellists were chosen at random to complete the poll, with quotas set and weights allocated on age, gender, class, region, education level & working status to ensure a nationally representative sample.
- A further past vote quota is included that looks at how people on our panel voted at the last general election and controls this to ensure it is close to the actual results.
- An additional past vote weight based on how people voted in both the last local and general elections is also applied
- Vote intention data is also weighted to take account of claimed likely turnout on the day of an election.
- In all respects the poll was completed to opinion polling guidelines set out by both ESOMAR & AIMRO

REDCLIVE

- Over 40,000 panellists in place – the most robust online panel in Ireland

RED C Polling Accuracy

Closest pollster again at General Election 2024

RED C are delighted with the accuracy of our polling at the recent Irish General Election in Nov 2024. The final RED C Business Post poll had the joint best average error across all parties for our final poll, and the most accurate by far across the three main parties, correctly predicting that Fianna Fáil would have the largest vote share and that they would benefit most from transfers, and was more accurate than the exit poll.

The accuracy of our final poll conducted online vs. polls conducted face to face with larger sample sizes, confirms the ability of online polling to accurately predict elections.

The accuracy of our polls once again underlines the high quality of our research, in particular the quality controls for our online panel and the statistical controls and weighting matrices used to ensure a representative sample.

The RED C published polls in the Business Post, clearly gave the insight to the wider population very accurately from the start of the campaign. Our final poll (figure 1 below) had an average error of just 0.8% the lowest error seen across all polls, and ahead of the exit poll.

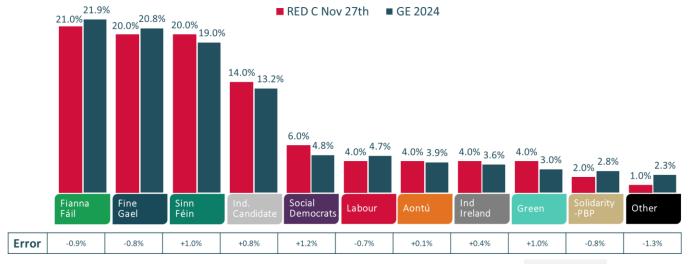

We also correctly predicted that Fianna Fáil would take the greatest vote share. In fact, our average error across the three main parties was just 0.9%. The most accurate by far across all polls conducted in the closing stages of the campaign.

RED C were also the most accurate at predicting the GE 2020 election result, using both a telephone and an online methodology

Polling is conducted on general election vote intention, and should not be compared with other second tier elections.

Notes

- For those that initially suggest they are undecided, we prompt with an extra question to ask which party they are most likely to vote for at this moment in time.
- After this prompt we remove those that still say they are undecided, or would not vote, and re-proportion on those expressing a preference.
- 3. Turnout weighting is added based on an algorithm that combines data on how likely someone is to say they plan to vote at the next GE on a 10-point scale, and whether they actually voted at the last election (if they were eligible to do so).

First preference vote intention x demographics

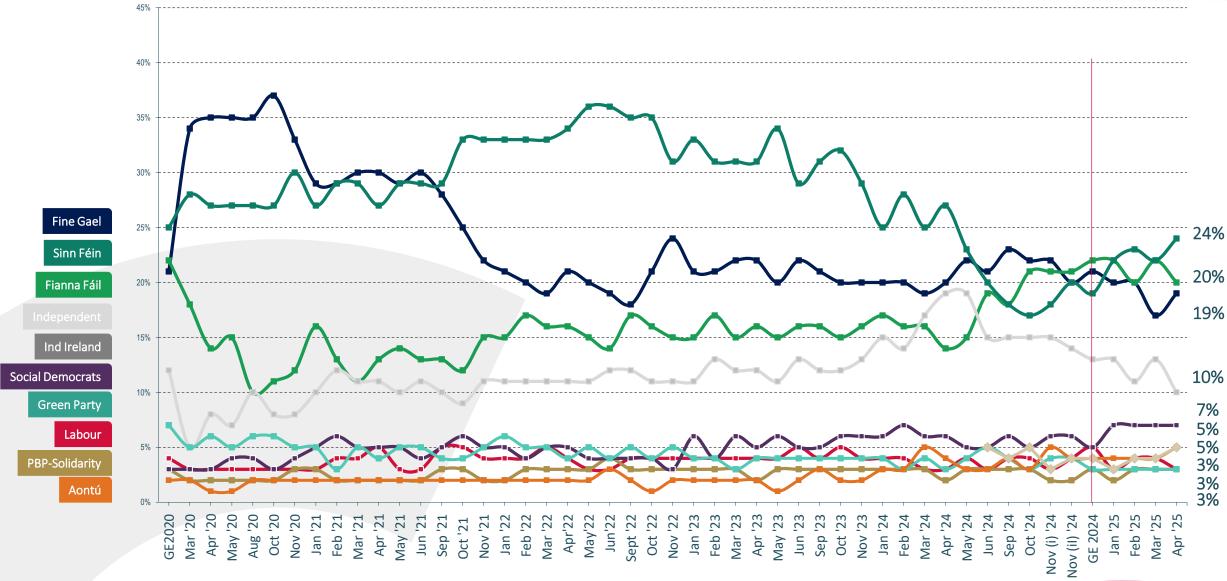

Note: Results on sub sample of the population are based on a much smaller sample size per group, and as such have a much higher margin of error. The results should therefore be treated with caution
